

Focus On Flies

By Norma Dixon

Fitzhenry & Whiteside. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 32 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.8in. x 0.2in. The housefly shares horrible habits with thousands of other two-winged insects that belong to the family of true flies. Gnats, midges, black flies, horse flies, African tsetse flies, and, of course, the most despised and dangerous member of the fly family, the mosquito. The fly has outlived the dinosaurs and adapted to life in almost every environment on earth. With its huge compound eyes, ability to fly, flip over and walk upside-down, it escapes even the craftiest predators. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.

Reviews

This publication is amazing. It is definitely basic but shocks in the fifty percent of your publication. You won't feel monotony at anytime of your own time (that's what catalogues are for concerning if you question me).
