Excerpt: . . . director plan and direct all experimental agricultural work conducted in the State, in consultation with and reporting directly to the Secretary of Agriculture and the dean of the State college of agriculture; (3) that the maintenance for the agricultural investigation in a State be supplied jointly by Federal and State appropriations, analogous to the plan followed in extension work. The director of the California Experiment Station, for example, would become director of the California bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. All experimental work in the State, by the station and the department, would be planned jointly and conducted jointly under the supervision of the combined director representing the station and the State bureau, the director reporting to both the local and the Federal agencies. The funds would come from State and Federal sources. The details of this plan are not amplified in...
